American Finance automates collection calls and cuts costs with Voice AI

A U.S.-based first-party debt collection agency, American Finance turned to Skit.ai, a leading conversational Voice AI software provider, to fully automate collection calls, reduce costs, and improve compliance.

▶ The Customer

American Finance is a finance company with in-house debt collections. Looking to improve its collection rates and reduce costs, the company turned to Skit.ai to explore end-to-end automation by employing a Voice AI-powered Digital Collection Agent to perform outbound collection calls. Across the ARM industry, agent costs and attrition rates have been increasing, and innovative technologies like Voice AI are the ideal solution to the problem.

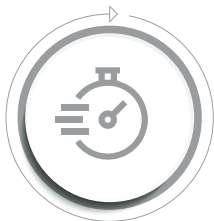

“We chose Skit.ai for its robust technology and understanding of the debt collections space, and we were equally impressed with how responsive and easy to work with the team was. Skit.ai’s Digital Collection Agent is performing as well as our average collector on the floor. We’ve been telling our peers in the industry that Skit.ai is one of the best ideas we’ve implemented at American Finance to date.”

Dean Stibbs, Director of Information Technology at American Finance

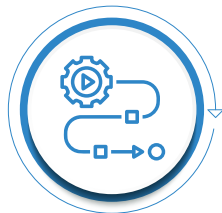

The Skit.ai Solution

With the ability to reach thousands of customers within minutes, Skit.ai's Digital Collection Agent performs just as well as the average human collector, at a fraction of the cost. After listening to American Finance's needs, Skit.ai implemented a successful pilot program for outbound call automation to collect payments from customers. The solution was built to engage customers in a friendly and empathetic manner, remind them of their due balances, and kindly guide them through the payment process. The solution was built to be fully compliant with local laws and regulations. Skit.ai's Voice AI platform was integrated with a third-party payment gateway to seamlessly process the collections.
